

Sudan: Coming home

Join with communities
and families
striving to rebuild their lives after years of war.

Through a multiyear effort, Sudan: Coming home, Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) is working alongside Sudanese communities to plant seeds of peace and to restore the building blocks of community such as schools and jobs. In areas of southern Sudan such as Rumbek and Juba, MCC-supported vocational and leadership programs are helping empower women to lead the way to change.

Because of years of civil war, Florence Ayikoru D'ekili, born in Morobo, Sudan, has spent most of her life in Uganda. While living in Rhino Camp, one of the major Ugandan camps accommodating southern Sudanese refugees, she became involved in tailoring and income generation classes under the Jesuit Refugee Service. After returning to southern Sudan in 2008, she approached MCC with her vision for women's empowerment.

Today, she's the administrator of an organization called the Mother's Union that provides tailoring and sewing courses, along with information on marketing and business concepts. Women also receive life-enhancing information on topics such as basic health care, home sanitation, personal hygiene and nutrition.

When a woman has the chance to start a business, learn how to read or improve or protect her health, her actions create ripples of change. She is empowered to help her family, other families and her entire community move away from the predicament of poverty. Join MCC in supporting efforts that offer women such as Ayikora D'ekili an active part in the recovery and rebuilding of southern Sudan.

Sudan: Coming home

Join with communities
and families
striving to rebuild their lives after years of war.

Through a multiyear effort, Sudan: Coming home, Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) is working alongside Sudanese communities to plant seeds of peace and to restore the building blocks of community such as schools and jobs. In areas of southern Sudan such as Rumbek and Juba, MCC-supported vocational and leadership programs are helping empower women to lead the way to change.

Because of years of civil war, Florence Ayikoru D'ekili, born in Morobo, Sudan, has spent most of her life in Uganda. While living in Rhino Camp, one of the major Ugandan camps accommodating southern Sudanese refugees, she became involved in tailoring and income generation classes under the Jesuit Refugee Service. After returning to southern Sudan in 2008, she approached MCC with her vision for women's empowerment.

Today, she's the administrator of an organization called the Mother's Union that provides tailoring and sewing courses, along with information on marketing and business concepts. Women also receive life-enhancing information on topics such as basic health care, home sanitation, personal hygiene and nutrition.

When a woman has the chance to start a business, learn how to read or improve or protect her health, her actions create ripples of change. She is empowered to help her family, other families and her entire community move away from the predicament of poverty. Join MCC in supporting efforts that offer women such as Ayikora D'ekili an active part in the recovery and rebuilding of southern Sudan.

Coming home to southern Sudan

A 22-year civil war shattered communities in southern Sudan, which is one of the most impoverished regions in the world. About 1.7 million people have returned to southern Sudan since the 2005 peace agreement. Millions of others, ready to return, wait to see how rebuilding efforts are progressing, and whether a fragile peace will hold.

MCC's response

Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) is working with long-time Sudanese church partners in a multimillion-dollar, multiyear response that grows out of more than 35 years of partnership with Sudanese churches. During the civil war, MCC worked with Sudanese church organizations to distribute food aid and support peacemaking efforts. Now the churches have asked MCC to help with recovery and rebuilding as people are returning to their homes in southern Sudan.

You can help

Pray for peace

to hold in Sudan and for an end to all violence.

Support peace

and ask your government leaders to back the peace process in Sudan.

$10

provides one day's salary for a tailoring instructor.

$75

provides half the cost of a sewing machine for a graduate of the program.

Please give

Donate online or mail your contribution, marked Sudan: Coming home, to the MCC office nearest you.

Learn more

mcc.org/sudancominghome

Mennonite Central Committee

West Coast MCC
1010 G Street, Reedley, CA 93654
(559) 638-6911
mcc.org/sudancominghome

Coming home to southern Sudan

A 22-year civil war shattered communities in southern Sudan, which is one of the most impoverished regions in the world. About 1.7 million people have returned to southern Sudan since the 2005 peace agreement. Millions of others, ready to return, wait to see how rebuilding efforts are progressing, and whether a fragile peace will hold.

MCC's response

Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) is working with long-time Sudanese church partners in a multimillion-dollar, multiyear response that grows out of more than 35 years of partnership with Sudanese churches. During the civil war, MCC worked with Sudanese church organizations to distribute food aid and support peacemaking efforts. Now the churches have asked MCC to help with recovery and rebuilding as people are returning to their homes in southern Sudan.

You can help

Pray for peace

to hold in Sudan and for an end to all violence.

Support peace

and ask your government leaders to back the peace process in Sudan.

$10

provides one day's salary for a tailoring instructor.

$75

provides half the cost of a sewing machine for a graduate of the program.

Please give

Donate online or mail your contribution, marked Sudan: Coming home, to the MCC office nearest you.

Learn more

mcc.org/sudancominghome

Mennonite
Central Committee

West Coast MCC
1010 G Street, Reedley, CA 93654
(559) 638-6911
mcc.org/sudancominghome